

Jockey Club Coding for Community Project

Dear S.3 Parents,

To cultivate students' digital literacy in face of the technological society, the school has been collaborating with *the Center for Information Technology in Education (CITE)*¹, Faculty of Education, University of Hong Kong, and *Youth Global Network (YGN)*² to implement the “Jockey Club Coding For Community Project” (C4C) in S.3 classes. This project combines computer coding courses and adult-youth partnership programs to enhance students' computational thinking skills, programming knowledge, and facilitate students to establish positive and caring values for society.

Objectives: To help students to gain positive values and attitudes in learning, relating to others and facing life, and actively search for one own path.

Target: All S.3 students

Mentor Source: School alumni, Yuen Long Kam Kwong Church and YGN volunteers

Content: Students will utilize the coding knowledge they have learned in class to design and make a mobile app. "Mentors" will provide students directional guidance. Students and “mentors” will learn together through collaboration.

Format: "Mentors" will meet with students in small groups (1: 4-6 ratio) and will communicate and encourage them through social media.

Remarks: A.The Mentoring Program is an extension of the secondary Form 3 computer lessons.

B.Students must wear neat sportswear to attend the following four activities.

C.For the application of leave indicated in the circular:

- 1. Students need to provide medical certificate and parent letter on the next school day for applying sick leave.*
- 2. Students need to provide parent letter one school day in advance if they want to apply for casual leave.*
- 3. Students who fail to comply with items 1 and 2 may be considered as truant.*

¹ Center for Information Technology in Education (CITE) is established to provide intellectual leadership and support to promote the use of information and communication technology (ICT) for quality education in Hong Kong. www.cite.hku.hk

² Youth Global Network (YGN) is a Hong Kong based non- profit with the mission to enhance holistic development and equip youths with global perspectives. www.ygn.org.hk
